

SOHO

THE MAGAZINE OF
ARTS & POLITICS JOURNAL

September 3rd, 2008

KATE O'DONOVAN COOK EXHIBITS HER TRUE IDENTITY--- ALL OF THEM.

by Joelle Panisch

Kate O'Donovan Cook Trinity: The Ocean, 2008, Archival Inkjet Print

Kate O'Donovan Cook is a classically trained artist with a flair for photography. Her collection showcases this pairing with a roundabout creativity that manipulates perspective, identity, and ultimate truth. Her works are plainly narrative but the stories they evoke are a little more complex. She often photographs herself as several characters in a single image. This cultivates a strangeness; a fantastic realm in what would otherwise be an obvious story.

O'Donovan Cook's work is exceptional and stands out amongst the theatrical, fashionable photography spreads of today's vogue. Her work is evokotive and not to be missed.

Kate O'Donovan Cook
September 4 -- October 7
Stephen Haller Gallery
542 West 26th Street (btwn 10th & 11th Avenues)
New York, NY 10001
(212) 741-7777
Tuesday -- Saturday
10am -- 6pm